Dallas County Community College District

Family Album:

A Look Back

Crowded classrooms, new faces, changing needs, a bond program, student life, retraining, workforce development, college degrees, diversity, new programs, old facilities, continuing education, financial aid, faculty, dual credit, transfers, retention, concurrent enrollment, Rising Star, graduation, “Closing the Gaps,” leadership changes, early college/collegiate high schools, hurricanes....

And the family album wouldn't be complete without remembering 40 years of service to students and our communities, too.

These images and so many others represent the challenges and opportunities that the Dallas County Community College District faced during its 2005-2006 academic year. While some experiences disappeared in a flash, others will last a lifetime. We have saved those memories (our success stories, too) on the pages of this report, first and foremost to put a face on the people who are our students and those who comprise our faculty, staff and administrators.

These snapshots (and the information which adds to what you see) also illustrate our commitment to learning, to communities, to education, to business, to donors, to friends and to those who support our efforts in every way – especially the taxpayers.

Our family album is yours, too. We share the same dreams – access to higher education, affordability, diversity, partnership and a strong economy – and we value our learning community. Enjoy our year in review because...

Success runs in the DCCCD family!
